DEVINE ONCE MORE.

FRESH FROM THE TOMB of political obscurity where he was supposed to be good and dead, comes our old friend and horse-trader, James Devine, asking the legislature to organize a fire commission for his special benefit. At a hearing in committee James appeared as sponsor for a measure which had been, wandering around, fatherless, nameless and forlorn, and declared the public has long been waiting for exactly such a measure. Like the modest man he is, James refrained from saying that the adoption of the bill would mean his installation in office once more, but then everybody knows what he meant when he urged action, so it amounts to the same thing.

To be sure, Devine is the only citizen heard from so far who would care to support a bill depriving cities of self-government in the fire and police departments, but that is a small matter with him. No doubt he honestly believes Salt Lake yearns for the good old horse-trading days; he thought the whole state wanted him for congressman, and he was honest about that too, though events proved he was a mighty poor guesser. And to relieve him of any further anxiety about the welfare of the public as related to his own, we assure Mr. Devine that a popular vote on his application for a job as fire chief would get about one vote—providing of course Devine was registered and duly qualified to go to the polls.

A LIFE-SAVING PLAN.

THE MEMBERS of the legislature who heard Dr. T. B. Beatty's talk on the saving of life that could be effected by proper health measures, will be the public a great service if they enable the state board of health to put into effect its plans for the dissemination of information as to preventable diseases and the way to minimize their danger to the commonwealth.

The practical side of the plan ought to appeal to every legislator, since it offers means of saving a large number of valuable lives which are now lost every year, and it would prevent the heavy loss in time and expense due to these diseases.

It is shown, for instance, that of the 4,000 deaths in Utah last year, at least 1,500 were due to diseases which could be stamped out by the exercise of the simplest precautions. In typhoid alone, there were 1,200 cases reported and a large number which were not recorded for lack of efficient organization. Every one of these 1,200 cases meant an expense, a total loss, of at least $100 each. The sources of typhoid infection are perfectly well known and absolutely capable of control. The disease is caused by living organisms which are transmitted to the victim through drinking water or food that has been contaminated from some other typhoid case. If every case of typhoid fever were carefully isolated and the patient's excreta destroyed, the disease would be stamped out in a very short time. As it is, the carelessness of the people, due in most cases to ignorance of the proper methods of handling the disease, results in an enormous waste of money and lives every year. The same is true of tuberculosis, or pneumonia, scarlet fever and the other germ diseases.

SUCH A SUDDENNESS.

THERE IS SOMETHING refreshing about the unexpectedness of Theodore. Here, just as the senate and house of representatives had settled down to a comfortable conviction that the session was pretty well over and that it was time to engage sleepers, the president sends in a special message with a volume of some thousands and reminds the senators that he has his eye on them if nobody else has. More than that, he means to have them follow his instructions or know the reason why.

It all came up over a bill establishing the jurisdiction of the department of agriculture over quarantine regulations affecting interstate movement of stock, a bill of which little has been heard, and which the congress had evidently forgotten. The message calls attention to the dereliction of both houses, and Mr. Hale, presiding in the senate, passes it along with a sort of family curtain lecture to the senate committee in charge of the bill, for its nonattendance.

The Herald confesses to ignorance of the measure except that in a general way it is intended to relieve live stock shippers of the annoyance and expense of inspection at every state line, and permit them to move shipments on one inspection by government agents. Whether it is a good measure or not is naturally debatable, since it has not been discussed enough to furnish accurate information, but the president evidently assumes that it is all right and means to have it passed if his dictum can accomplish action.

Just the same, it would be much more thoughtful of the strenuous one if he would arrange to give notice in advance of such shocks as this. He might have a bell rung outside the capitol, or send a herald in advance of his messages with a trumpet to announce that something was due to happen. A few more such violent surprises and there will be an epidemic of heart failure in that elysium of the simple life where the solons of the nation are wont to gather.

IS QUARLES ELIGIBLE?
THE ELIGIBILITY of Senator Quarles to the office of United States judge for the eastern district of Wisconsin is being seriously questioned by lawyers in congress. President Roosevelt appointed Senator Quarles some days ago, the appointment to take effect on his retirement March 4. There is a clause in the federal constitution that provides that no senator or representative shall be appointed to any office which has been created or its emoluments increased during the term of service of such senator or representative.

Now Senator Quarles was a member of congress when, about a year ago, the pay of district judges was increased from $5,000 to $5,500 per year. Strictly speaking he is, therefore, ineligible. It is said that the president had waited until after the retirement of Quarles before appointing him no question of eligibility would have been raised. Unless senatorial courtesy intervenes to prevent it, the executive will, under the circumstances, have a contest on his hands.

It is said that Governor LaFollette, who starts his first term as United States senator March 4, will enter vigorous objections to the appointment of Quarles. A dispatch says that "the president may not care to offend a senator by insisting on an appointment to which the senator objects." Whoever wrote that sentence does not know Roosevelt. There is nothing the president gets more apparent enjoyment out of than a fight with the senate.

The appointment of the negro Crum to be collector of the port of Charleston is a case in point. The promotion of Brigadier General Wood to be a major general is another. And other instances could be cited. The president has never yet withdrawn an appointment because a senator did not like it. We do not very much fancy Senator Quarles as a federal judge because he has been too closely identified with the Wisconsin corporations, but it is perfectly safe to wager that his appointment will be confirmed, objections or no objections.

A GOVERNMENT SLAVE.

A CURIOUS CASE of involuntary servitude comes out of Mississippi. No, it is not a cruel planter who is holding chains on a poor, but honest, though ignorant, black. The government of the United States, or at least the postoffice department of the government, is at fault. The story is told in a dispatch to the Chicago Record-Herald as follows:

A. L. Horton, a negro postmaster at Way Station, Madison county, thirty-five miles north of here, has been charged that he is being held in peonage by the postoffice department. Horton has previously attempted to resign, but the postoffice department refused to accept the resignation for the reason that no other person can be found willing to take the office. The negro asserts that the postmaster general is holding him in involuntary servitude, and that he is losing money by serving as postmaster.

It surely is not true that nobody can be found to take this office. We are sure there are Democrats in Mississippi who, through long absence from the public crib, would be glad to take even this humble place. But perhaps the soul of the proud Mississippiian would revolt at the thought of going into a place that had been soiled and sullied by a nigger, suh.

Corpus Callosum.
(Baltimore American.)
(Foreword)—Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka of Columbia university has discovered that the proportion of white and gray matter in the brain is not really important, but that the size and healthfulness of the corpus callosum is the real determining factor in the matter of mental caliber.

How is your corpus callosum, my lad? Strictly sound—good, or away to the bad? How is the disconnector between the white matter of your brain with the gray—is it right? When in the nighttime you wake with a start, Feeling cold chills in the realm of your heart— Fearing the world ne'er may know of your name, Calm yourself, knowing to fall were no shame. Only your corpus callosum's to blame.

How is your corpus callosum—O, say! How is your corpus callosum today? Flourish it like the rawhide in June? Grows it like love 'neath the spell of the moon? Out with the old-fashioned twaddle of all such behind-the-ness gives us a pain, "Brain convulsions," "gray matter and white." Out of the darkness into the light! See that your corpus callosum is right.

Never again will the man who has wheels dare to complain how his cerebral feels. How could a man be so mad as to dream brains have a part in the mania's dream? How could those hemispheres up in the skull Make a man brilliant or keep a man dull? Long we've suspected that all was not right. Shunned the word "brain" at the top of our might. Corpus callosum, you bring us delight!

In Short Meter.
(Philadelphia Record.)
The easiest road to break is a china one. The dressmaker's salutation is "sew long." Happiness is largely a matter of our own making. There are men who never pay anything their own except grudges. In a trolley car and a graveyard there is always room for one more. Most of us would be perfect if we followed the advice we give others. It's easy enough to forgive our enemies after we have got even with them. The taxidermist is not the only man who is out for the stuff. You have to flatter some people to keep on good terms with them. It doesn't follow that there is no effect without a cause when a woman changes her mind. The modiste can help a girl out with her wedding gown, but not with her divorce suit. The people who are most eager to share their troubles are usually those who are most stingy with their good luck. Hears this hair is getting rather thin, isn't it?

Joan—Yes; I don't believe it's strong enough to take its own part.

A Good Remedy.
(New York Tribune.)
In the schools of a Connecticut town measures were recently taken to test the children's eyesight. As the doctor finished each school he gave the principal a list of pupils whose eyes needed attention, and requested him to notify the children's parents to that effect. One boy brought home to his father this note from the principal:

"Dear Sir—It becomes my duty to inform you that your son shows decided indications of astigmatism, and his case is one that should be attended to without delay."
The next day the father sent the following answer: "Dear Sir—Whip it out of him. Yours truly,"

Side Line.
(Philadelphia Bulletin.)
The Midget—Isn't that our old friend, the fat lady?

The Glass Eater—Yes; she generally picks up a few dollars at this time of the year testing the ice on skating parks.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Salt Lake City People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first. But when you know 'tis from the kidneys; That serious kidney troubles follow; That diabetics, Bright's disease may be the fatal end. You will gladly profit by the following experience. We both recommend the remedy very enthusiastically.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Mr. John Baussell, wife of John Baussell, bricklayer of 7 Galena block, says: "If all annoyed for years with pain across the loins, sometimes so severe that they can scarcely stand, and it, which resists the use of plaster and other makeshifts; if all bothered with a weakness in the action and condition of the kidney services; if disturbed by their rest at night despite the fact of using remedies; could have those ailments removed as quickly as Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the F. J. Hill Drug Co.'s store, stopped mine, then backache or kidney complaint in any of its forms would cease to exist in this vicinity. Satisfied that the first box did me a wonderful amount of good I purchased a second and when I stopped it the last attack disappeared. Mr. Baussell also used Doan's Kidney Pills and from the treatment received undoubted benefit. We both recommend the remedy very enthusiastically."
